

They say we had about 2,500 in the crowd at Hope Star's runoff election party last night. It wasn't as large as the one at the preferential election party July 25 — but surprisingly good just the same. A close race for sheriff is almost as effective as a gubernatorial campaign in getting out the crowd, the main difference being that with the state campaign already settled not so many people came in here from other counties Tuesday night.

Biggest laugh of the Election Party was the notice flashed on the screen:

"Government Bulletin ? ? ?
"All successful candidates are expected to report to Hope Post Office at 5:30 tomorrow morning and help clean up the Post Office Lawn. (Signed) Ernest Hockett, The Post Office Janitor."

I wasn't there at 5:30 this morning — but neither were the candidates.

It was just like it is every year: Hockett cleaned up the Post Office Lawn by himself this morning, and our crew straightened up the newspaper office — which always winds up in about the same shape as the neighboring P. O. Lawn.

The elections are over, and that's all right by me. Now that we have the double primary system the next reform all of us ought to work for is the four-year term. The double-primary guarantees every winner has to have a majority vote, and a four-year term would mean no greater expense for everybody than we had before the double primary.

Robinson, Ward Named Justices

Little Rock, Aug. 9 —(P)— Voting is far fewer numbers than two weeks ago, Arkansas yesterday chose a chancery judge and a former prosecutor as Democratic nominees for two vacant Supreme court seats.

In the only two contested state races on the second 1950 Democratic primary ballot, Chancellor Paul Ward, Batesville, was nominated for the unexpired term of retired Justice Frank B. Smith, and Sam Robinson, Little Rock, was nominated to succeed the late Justice R.W. Robins.

Voters also formally renominated U. S. Sen. J. W. Robinson, Congressman Wilbur Mills, E. C. Gathings, Jim Trimble, Boyd Tackett, Brooks Hayes and W. F. Norrell, Attorney General Ike Murry, Secretary of State C. G. Hall, Auditor J. Oscar Humphrey, land Commissioner Claude Rankin and Supreme Court Justice Ed F. McFadden and Minor Milwee, all of whom were without opposition.

The ballot also contained a host of district, county and city races in which there were only two candidates originally, or in which no candidate received a majority vote in the July 25 preferential primary.

Gov. Sid McMath, Lt. Gov. Nathan Gordon, Treasurer J. Vance Clayton and Congressman Oren Harris, El Dorado, were renominated by majority votes in the primary two weeks ago, when a record 327,000 votes were cast in the governor's race. The total vote yesterday with about three-fourths of the state's 2,252 precincts reported, was only slightly more than 181,000.

The two supreme court races decided yesterday were sent into the second primary from the preferential. The two winners yesterday ran ahead then, but did not receive majorities.

Ward was opposed yesterday by R. B. McCulloch, Forrest City attorney and member of the Arkansas public service commission in the administration of former Gov. Ben Laney. Robinson was opposed by Lefel Gentry, Little Rock attorney.

This Seems to Be a Good Way and It Worked

Damascus, Aug. 9 — (AP) — This is a fish story with a new twist.

A 12-year-old boy was noted as absent on both morning and afternoon roll calls at a rural school near here.

Before the afternoon session ended, the pupil entered the schoolroom, marched straight down the aisle and presented his teacher with a no, not an apple, but a 4-pound catfish. The trick worked, but the lad was admonished not to try it again.

A total of 131 varieties of native trees is found in Great Smoky Mountains National Park in North Carolina and Tennessee.

Crack Communist Front Entire Line; Situation in Taegu Now Well in Hand

Eight army commander, had ordered the invaders at this point wiped out by nightfall.

The allied central front is manned by the U.S. 24th division, reinforced by newly arrived second division elements from Ft. Lewis, Wash., the First Cavalry and South Korean troops.

A similar general rank order Tuesday could not be carried out. Instead more Reds crossed the Nakdong river with some armor Tuesday night.

The foremost Red threat reached to a dozen miles from Taegu, main supply terminal on the road-rail corridor leading northwest out of Pusan port, the big U.S. base.

In the extreme south, where the first U.S. offensive effort bogged down two days ago, tank-led marines and doughboys got rolling again — but laboriously. They drove past North Korean dead for gains measured in yards, pushing toward burned-out Chaiju, a dozen miles ahead.

Study Plan to Break Malik's Hold on U. N.

Lake Success, Aug. 9 — (AP) — United Nations security council members mapped strategy today to break Russian President Jakob A. Malik's one-man stranglehold on the council in its tracks.

The Russians were not invited to the informal conferences which occupied most of the delegations. The council recessed yesterday until Thursday afternoon after getting nowhere in one of the most bitter, heated sessions since Malik took over the presidency Aug. 1.

Taking the floor when he wished as Soviet delegate, Malik threw another resolution into the council, this one seeking to condemn the U. S. air force for bombings in North Korea. He did this after making new charges that the U. S. is the aggressor in Korea, dictating the role the U. N. is playing.

Warren R. Austin, U. S. delegation chief, retorted pointedly: "Who hasn't cooperated with 53 other U. N. members in the Korean action? Who could call off the North Korea invaders? What member of this security council is assisting the invaders in the security council?"

In each case, Austin answered himself: "The Soviet Union."

But Malik refused to allow Austin's resolution of July 31, denouncing the North Koreans, and demanding that aid for them be outlawed, to come up for discussion. He refused to seat the South Korean representative unless the council agreed to hear a South Korean.

The meeting was still bogged down in a water procedure when it gave up until tomorrow. Malik wanted it to meet today and talk about the bombing of North Korea, but was voted down 8 to 1, with one abstention—Yugoslavia.

After the meeting, Ernest Gross, a U. S. delegate, said a number of courses are possible to meet Malik's obstruction.

The most extreme, he said, would be to change the rules of the council of electing a President and make them effective immediately — virtually throwing Malik out of the chair.

Another extreme move — he stressed these are possible but not probable — would be to have no more meetings this month.

Another would be to transfer the problems to a specially-called session of the general assembly. Secretary-general Trygve Lie said Monday such a session could convene in 24 hours if conditions warranted it.

But Gross added the course to be taken to thwart Malik's obstruction will be decided after consultations that may last through tomorrow morning. By that time other delegations can have instructions from their capitals.

Week's Third Fatal Accident Is Reported

At least three persons have died violently in Arkansas this week.

High Officials Eye Threat at Taegu

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Aug. 9 — (AP) — The Pentagon high command was keeping a watchful eye today on the North Korean pincer move aimed at the important United Nations communications and supply center of Taegu.

It was viewed here as a potential danger, but not necessarily a disaster.

On the basis of reports up to mid-morning, a Pentagon briefing officer said there was optimism here and at 6th army headquarters about the ability to hold Taegu.

He said field headquarters was not alarmed about the situation. Though Taegu's rail and highway center, flow of ammunition, supplies and reinforcements needed by American and South Korean divisions manning the central northern front, along the Nakdong river line, on which a firm foothold is being attempted.

The fall of Taegu, thus would be more than a loss of territory and another dent in the now contracted defense perimeter. The problem of supply from the rear area of Pusan would become even worse.

But, it was pointed out, even if the defense line at Taegu should be pushed back there, a number of good positions in mountainous country behind the city along which a new defense sector could be established.

The Pentagon has insisted that the Nakdong river line, and the area near it, should not be considered as definitely the final line, that a fall-back to a still shorter inner position in the hilly country to the southeast might become necessary.

While an estimated 12,000 Korean Reds pushed across the Nakdong river in three prongs, one of which had moved up to a dozen miles from Taegu last night, American infantry and marines on the south flank were making progress with their own attack there, the first large offensive action against the enemy.

Veteran military men here saw nothing unprecedented in the fact that each side should have mounted an offensive almost simultaneously. They remarked that was a common tactical practice and a risk armies must take. When one side commits large forces to an attack at a certain point, the other side makes its own strike elsewhere for the two-fold purpose of gaining ground and attempting to divert some strength from the opponent's attack to his own menaced area.

Counterfeiters Are Arrested in Missouri

Washington, Aug. 9 — (AP) — The secret service announced today the arrest of two men in a lonely mountain cabin at DeSoto, Missouri, on charges of passing $12,000 in counterfeit ten dollar bills in 23 states.

Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman said the men were scheduled for arraignment today before a U. S. commissioner in St. Louis. He named them as:

Melvin Godfrey Parsons, 57, of Crystal City, Missouri, charged with manufacturing the bills.

Louis Elmer Shaw, 41, of DeSoto, charged with passing the bogus money on grocers and other store keepers throughout the west, southwest and southeast.

Baughman said the men were arrested separately, yesterday and last night, at a cabin where Shaw has been living on the edge of the Ozark mountains.

He said complete printing equipment, including press and 40 plates were seized, together with 25 finished ten dollar counterfeit notes.

The plates were hidden near the cabin, some buried in the ground, some in a wood pile. Others were stuck in tree tops.

Baughman said the secret service knows 40 more plates are buried in California in a ravine three miles from the ocean. He declined to tell reporters the exact location because secret service agents have not yet found the plates.

I would like to thank the people of Hope for electing me Aldman in Ward 2.

I will serve to the best of my ability.

Electrical Storm Hits This Section

By The Associated Press

A severe electrical storm accompanied by high winds and peeping rains pounded much of south Arkansas Tuesday. At least one death was attributed to the storm.

Weather reports from the storm are indicated that property damage was heavy.

The victim was 54-year-old Jim Davis of England who was killed by a bolt of lightning after he took refuge under a tree near his home to escape the electrical storm. His son, Herman Davis, 25, was standing near his father, but apparently escaped with minor shock.

Center of the storm apparently was in Drew and Lincoln counties. Power and communication lines were down in several sections. Many buildings were unroofed.

Reports of Tuesday's Democratic runoff primary results were delayed from many sections because of power failures. Telephone communication between Little Rock and Star City (Lincoln county) were out several hours.

At Monticello, officials reported the storm struck about 7:15 p. m. and lasted about two hours. Heaviest damage there was at the Ridgeway hotel, which was struck by lightning. Damage from the accompanying winds also was reported heavy in outlying sections.

A torrential rain hit Dermott for about 15 minutes but one official reported the rainfall at 1.32 inches. The Sibernagel and Co. wholesale grocery at Dermott was hit by lightning. Reports said damage was light. Many streets were flooded, trees were blown over and a dwelling was struck by lightning.

The electrical storm also struck El Dorado, Fordyce and Hampton.

Trooper Cooper Oliver of Monticello reported to Arkansas state police headquarters at Little Rock that Wilmar also was hard hit by the storm.

He said high winds unroofed a warehouse, tore down a smokestack, and crashed in the front of a cafe at that community. He also reported a sawmill was wrecked by the winds.

Taft Proposes Pay-as-You Go Plan

Washington, Aug. 9 — (AP) — Senator Taft (R-Ohio) proposed today a $13,000,000,000 to $14,000,000,000 a year increase in taxes, to put the Korean war and American's rearmament program on a pay-as-you-go basis.

This would boost the annual tax load to about $5,000,000,000, above the previous $44,200,000,000 record top in 1945, the last year of World War II. The treasury has estimated tax collections this year under present rates, at $36,200,000,000.

Taft described President Truman's $5,000,000,000 tax-boosting measure, now under consideration by the senate finance committee, as "merely a stop gap," with heavier taxes to come later.

Meanwhile, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said at a news conference that a comprehensive tax plan will be sent to congress in January and "it will certainly include some type of tax to prevent undue war profits."

Snyder said he has no personal knowledge of any immediate plan to submit an excess profits tax, but said the President has made it known he will move at the proper time to prevent undue war profits.

In suggesting his pay-as-you-go plan, Taft emphasized that not near all the increased tax collections would be by boosting rates. He said a large part of the increase will come from a broad expansion of the economy in the rearmament program.

No one likes to increase taxes," the chairman of the senate Republican policy committee said, "but today there appears to be no alternative in view of the mess in which we find ourselves throughout the world and the strong position in which our policy has placed the Russian Communists. x x x"

Navy to Build Atom-Powered Submarine

Washington, Aug. 9 — (AP) — The navy now has authority to build this country's first atomic-powered submarine.

Also, Rep. Robeson (D-Va) told a reporter that work will be resumed soon on the 65,000-ton supercarrier United States.

And word came out of a special house armed services "expediting" subcommittee that overtime work or extra shifts may be ordered to rush completion of the nation's $85,000,000 radar warning system.

Authority for the atomic submarine was included in a $350,000,000 navy shipbuilding bill signed yesterday by President Truman.

The act also authorizes the building of radically new small combat craft, some of them for underwater operations, as well as the conversion of a cruiser into a guided missile vessel. All told the bill calls for construction, modernization or conversion of 112 vessels of different types.

The objective is to strengthen the navy's anti-submarine striking power, and improve protection of harbors and coastline.

Robeson did not elaborate on his statement that work is to be resumed at Newport News, Va., on the United States. However, the big ship for which congress authorized $189,000,000, has been generally cited in naval circles as a potentially valuable arm for defense against possible submarine attacks on American shipping.

Work on the carrier, still in the keel-laying stage, was halted more than a year ago on orders of Secretary of Defense Johnson. Johnson said his order was made for economy reasons.

Admiral Forrest Sherman, chief of naval operations and a strong advocate of preparedness against submarine warfare put in a plug for the supercarrier last April. He told the house armed services committee he believed ships of this type would have to be built "in the long run" to handle jet fighters and bombers being acquired by the navy.

Truman Seeks to Cope With Communism

Washington, Aug. 8 — (AP) — President Truman completed today a message to congress calling for legislation to combat sabotage and cope with Communists.

While House officials said it would be sent some times this afternoon, they said it carried a warning to the country against being swept by hysteria.

The message embraces the President's recommendations for strengthening existing security laws.

However, they said, the President cautions against "letting ourselves be swept away by any hysteria."

The message was said to outline a presidential determination that the United States be secure from subversion and sabotage without sacrificing historic liberties.

The message carries a warning against "extremists" described as using police state measures," as well as against legislation which would not strongly uphold the bill of rights. Mr. Truman emphasizes non-interference with free speech.

Largely, the President calls for tightening and strengthening existing security laws to deal with Communists and other subversives.

He points to what he calls "important defects" in present laws and asks their correction before adjournment of the present session of congress.

No reference is made, apparently, to outlawing the Communist party.

Various bills to deal with Communists and subversion are pending in congress, several sponsored by Republicans.

Mr. Truman's decisions to send a message to the legislators on the subject at this time apparently indicated he wanted legislation of his own choosing.

First word that the chief executive had drafted an anti-sabotage message came from Speaker Rayburn.

Arkansans Seek New Deal on Mexican Labor

Washington, Aug. 9 — (AP) — A group of Arkansans has asked for a "new deal" in contracts under which Mexican laborers come to the United States to work in cotton fields.

Cotton producers bringing in Mexican labor are required to post bond to insure return to Mexico of each laborer. Last year the bond was $25. This year it has been raised to $50.

The Arkansans suggested a contract under which a specified percentage of the laborer's pay would be withheld while he works. This portion of his pay would be turned over to him when he crosses the border on his return trip.

Growers have complained that under the present plan they have no control over the laborers and they many just walk away from their jobs. Each one who leaves means a bond forfeiture for the planter, of course.

The Arkansas group met at the White House with representatives of the state and labor departments and the immigration service. The delegation included James Crain Wilson; Harvey Adams, West Memphis; C. C. Willey, Altheimer, and Judge A. W. Oliver of Proctor.

Another Seeks Position of House Speaker

Hot Springs, Aug. 8 — (AP) — A third member of the Arkansas house has announced he will be a candidate for speaker at the 1951 session.

He is James R. Campbell, veteran Garland county representative, who made his announcement yesterday.

He will oppose county Rep. Paul Van Dalsen of Perryville and Bradley Rep. Carroll Hollensworth of Warren who announced last Saturday.

Campbell has served since 1928 except for one session, when he was chief clerk.

He was renominated without opposition at yesterday's Democratic primary.

Bernie Creger, second baseman for the Omaha Cardinals, recently came to bat twice in the same inning against Colorado Springs—and was hit by the pitcher both times.

over to him when he crosses the border on his return trip.

Growers have complained that under the present plan they have no control over the laborers and they many just walk away from their jobs. Each one who leaves means a bond forfeiture for the planter, of course.

The Arkansas group met at the White House with representatives of the state and labor departments and the immigration service. The delegation included James Crain Wilson; Harvey Adams, West Memphis; C. C. Willey, Altheimer, and Judge A. W. Oliver of Proctor.

Wallace Quits Progressive Party

New York, Aug. 9 — (AP) — Henry Wallace resigned from the Progressive party last night because it condemns the American stand in Korea.

The action completed a split that began three weeks ago between Wallace and the party that organized to run him for President in 1948.

Three weeks ago, Wallace made public his own support for the U.S. and U.N. actions in Korea — while the party's national committee issued a statement opposing the American action.

Wallace said then he would wait for action of the party's rank and file before making a further move. Since then, the Progressive's state party organizations have voted overwhelmingly to back up the national committee.

Wallace said he had no immediate political plans. He gave his decision in a two-paragraph note to C. B. Baldwin, his long-time political aide and the Progressive party secretary.

Baldwin said there would be no immediate change in the set-up of the party.

Wallace is living at his farm at nearby South Salem, N. Y. He said he would continue some semi-scientific, semi-practical work in plant and animal breeding.

Wallace's political life often has obscured his rank as one of the world's leading experts in the breeding of hybrid corn.

McMath's Boys Lose Out in Garland

Hot Springs, Aug. 9 (AP) — Curtis Ridgway, who apparently has won the Democratic nomination for circuit judge of the 18th district, collapsed this morning and was taken to St. Joseph's hospital.

His condition isn't known. It is believed he suffered nervous.

Earlier, his opponent, Judge Clyde Brown, conceded defeat.

Said Brown: "We were defeated by an organization of long political experience and a tremendous expenditure of money on their part. We tried hard x x x congratulate the winner."

On the basis of returns from 64 of the 67 precincts in Garland and Montgomery county, Ridgway, former prosecuting attorney, had 5,396, Brown 5,148.

Manpower Important Need-Tydings

Washington, Aug. 9 — (P) — Fighting manpower was listed by Senator Tydings (D-Md) today as America's first probable shortage in mobilizing for the future. Tydings, chairman of the senate armed services committee, at the same time questioned proposals for enlisting Japanese volunteers or re-arming Western Germans.

"I think our biggest need in the immediate future will be trained manpower," Tydings told a reporter. "We will need more ground fighting forces."
Tydings said he thought congress would give quick approval to President Truman's requests for about $15,000,000 additional for defense spending and foreign military arms aid. It was asked since U. S. forces went into Korea to halt Communist aggression there.

"Unless there are unexpected developments outside of Korea, I think we will have plenty of funds and equipment in the near future," Tydings continued. "The squeeze, if any, will be on fighting manpower."

A reporter suggested that these comments might indicate a new drive in congress for the universal military training programs asked several times by President Truman.

Tydings said he was not thumping for UMT but was not would present any recommendations from the defense department and army, navy or air force to the senate and his committee.

He said a bill by Senator Magnuson (D-Wash.), proposing that U. S. armed forces open their ranks to voluntary Japanese enlistments, had been sent to the defense department for its recommendations.

General Douglas MacArthur pretty well squelched the idea yesterday. He termed the proposal "of doubtful feasibility" in a cable to Magnuson.

The general pointed out that before such a move peace treaties should be concluded with Japan. Lacking these it remains under international control.

MacArthur said he approved the "evident underlying purpose" of "bolstering the security of Japan and thereby strengthening resistance to totalitarian communism throughout the world."

Magnuson, after MacArthur's cable, said he still believed that his plan for Japanese enlistments should be carried through.

Clark Inching Away From Glen Taylor

By the Associated Press

Former Senator D. Worth Clark was inching away from Senator Glen Taylor today in their nip-and-tuck race for Idaho's democratic senate nomination.

In 675 precincts of 839, Clark had 23,882 and Taylor 22,427, a lead of 1,455. A third candidate, Rep. Compton White, had 13,941. The race is for a full six year term.

Senator Henry Dworshak, serving by appointment, won the Republican nomination for the four year term. His two opponents conceded.

The Taylor-Clark contest featured primary elections yesterday in Idaho, Nebraska and Arkansas. Taylor ran for vice president on Henry A. Wallace's Progressive party ticket in 1948, but this year returned to the Democratic party.

DOROTHY DIX Fair Chance

Dear Miss Dix: Is it fair to bring children into the world when every thing is so uncertain? Some people through no fault of their own have such unhappy lives. Is it worth while having children from the parents' standpoint?

MRS. L. N.

Answer: It is certainly as serious a matter to give life as it is to take it, and men and women should consider long and thoughtfully what sort of chance they are giving a child before they bring it into the world. Certainly no one has the right to give a child such a rotten deal as to handicap it with the stigma of illegitimacy, or to doom it to a lifetime of suffering by inflicting on it hereditary disease.

But if people refrained from having children until they could assure them a perfectly safe and prosperous journey through life those would never be another baby born, because there has never been a safe world and there will never be one.

Life Always an Adventure
Always, and to every child, life will be an adventure, full of danger and difficulties through which he must fight his way, and no provision of the parents can safeguard him. No man knows what fate may befall his children. And that is what makes life interesting and exciting, and probably no baby if given his choice, would prefer to come into a cut and dried world, no matter how safe.

As to your question whether it is worth while having children from the parents' standpoint, I should say yes, if the parents are normal human beings. Possibly people who are selfish, self-centered egotists do not find children worth the trouble they cost, but most men and women get the purest happiness they ever have out of their babies.

As we grow older our interest in ourself wanes. We don't care so much about ourselves and our personal hopes. We don't believe in ourselves so much. We know that nothing much awaits us in the future. What was in us to do, we have done, and it wasn't so hot. And so if we have no children we have no keen interest in the future.

But if we have children we still have a stake in the game. What we haven't done we expect them to do. Where we have failed we look to them to succeed. We live again in them and it keeps us keyed up, alert and young ourselves.

Dear Miss Dix: What is the difference between an intelligent wife and an ignorant one? Are consideration and truthfulness the keynotes to happiness? If either the husband or the wife is a gossip, does keeping mum about one's affairs show superior intellect. These subjects have been matters of discussion in our circle and we would like to know what you think. R. E. L.

Second. Consideration, whether we apply it to other people or they apply it to us, certainly makes for happiness, since we all love to have our own little peculiarities, respected and deferred to and object to having people tread on our toes. But I doubt if any of us could speak the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth to our fellow creatures without making wholesale enemies and being avoided as if we had the plague.

Third. Stevenson rated being a good gossip as one of the most desirable qualifications that a wife could have. I agree with him. A gossip need not be a scandal-monger. Certainly the wife who can not go two blocks to the grocery store without seeing and hearing something interesting makes a dinner table a far pleasanter place than is the one presided over by a silent woman who never says a word except to correct Junior about the way he eats.

Fourth. Keeping mum about one's affairs is a bar to friendship, but it is no indication of profundity of intellect. People who don't talk are generally empty-headed ones who have nothing to say. We used to fall for the great silent men, but now we know them for what they are. Just stuffed shirts.

Dear Miss Dix: If a man has done wrong and paid the penalty and is determined to come back and go straight, is it best for him to return to the town in which he has always lived when he is let out of prison? Is it possible for him to ever entirely come back?

SEEKING THE WAY

Answer: Of course, he can come back if he wishes to do so. Many have gone back to the old home town and made good there, but I think it is far easier for them to do in some strange place in which they will not be continually reminded of their past and have it held against them.

Truman Asks Laws Against Communism

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Aug. 9 — (P) — President Truman has asked congress to pass four laws aimed at Communists: Make it easier for the government to punish spies, keep a check on them, prevent sabotage, and watch aliens who should be deported.

Except for the last point, there's a bill in congress which would carry out Mr. Truman's ideas. This bill — offered by Rep. Bryson (D-SC) — was passed by the house in March. The senate hasn't acted on it yet. Still another house-passed measure parallels the President's views on unwanted aliens but goes beyond his recommendations.

Mr. Truman expressed his ideas in a message to congress yesterday, so, in effect, he supported the pending bill. At the same time he warned against some other bills hanging fire in congress, adding that extreme anti-Communist measures passed now could be used later against non-Communist Americans under different circumstances — a use for which they were not intended.

Here are his four points:

1. Make it easier to punish spies in peacetime. Under present law no one can be brought to trial for spying in peacetime unless the government charges him within three years of the crime.
This three-year limit on government's power to charge a peacetime spy is called the statute of limitations. Yesterday Mr. Truman asked congress to extend this statute of limitations.
He didn't say for how long. But the house-passed bill would raise the limit from the three years after the crime to 10. And the penalty is 10 to 20 years in jail.

(There's no limit on when a man can be charged for spying in wartime. For that, the penalty is death.)

2. To keep a better check on spies. Under present law any American in this country doing work for a foreign government of a political nature must register as an agent of that government. (For example: American law must require a foreign government to register its agents in this country. If they're hired to advise a foreign government on how to deal with this government.)

In his message Mr. Truman asked for a law forcing anyone — that would mean foreigners as well as Americans — who has been trained or told to spy on this country to report that fact by registering.

This might seem funny — taking a spy to report he's a spy or been trained to spy — but, if there was a law requiring him to report that fact, and he failed to do so, his intentions were disclosed, he could be punished, even if he didn't manage to do any spying. The house-passed bill would carry out this idea.

3. Prevent sabotage. Under present laws the President has pretty wide powers to issue orders protecting places involved in national defense. Mr. Truman asked congress to give him even wider powers.

He didn't say exactly what he had in mind. But the house-passed bill spells out presidential power to issue security orders about plants, airports, waterfronts, laboratories.

(Congressmen who approved this bill explain it would take the place of a law which was passed during the war but died in 1948.)

4. To watch aliens who should be deported.

What happens when this government wants to deport an alien — for something he's done — back to his own country but it refuses to let him in?

Under present law he can be held in custody for a time by this government. Then, except for having to notify the government of any change in his address, he's free to wander around.

If he's considered dangerous, of course, you can be sure the FBI will watch him. But now Mr. Truman asks for a change in the law to permit "the attorney general to exercise supervision over aliens subject to deportation."

Since supervision by the attorney general really means supervision by the FBI, it's not clear what kind of extra power for the FBI Mr. Truman has in mind. But the President made it plain

But No. 4 is covered by a law introduced by Senator Hodge (D-Ind.) last session. House.
First son: "Father, I did an awful last night and I want thousand dollars of money." Father: "It's a lot of money, anything to save the family?" (Writes out check).
Second son: "Father, I got trouble last night and I want thousand dollars of money." Father: "It's a lot of money, anything to save the family?" (Writes out check).
Daughter: "Father, I did a thing dreadful last night." Father: "Ah, now we know." Two salesman went fishing. A while one said to the other, "Any luck?" "No," was the reply. "I caught the cork out."

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

New York, Aug. 8.—Time and again in years past, clients of these dispatches asked me to change the subject from unions, racketeers, the Roosevelts and their grafting and demoralizing conduct and the Communists. But I knew that the unions were a subterfuge, a trick organizations comparable to the Nazi party in Germany or the people's fronts in the Communist satellite countries and were being used by Roosevelt to establish a control of the people which the constitution knewingly withheld from government. I spelled it all out by quoting laws and revealing the atrocious practices of union jurisprudence under gangster and Communist judges and trial boards.

Now you are going to be sorry that you ever listened to those who persuaded you that such a rogues' gallery of your constitutional rights as a citizen were necessary and reasonable when you became a union member. You are going to be sorry that you ever gave a vote to a paltry hack from an underworld political machine that did not spurn the profits of prostitution in Kansas City, who went among you snarling that the act of congress which tried to curb the powers of these brown shirts and Reds was a "Slave labor law." I am afraid the fight to loosen the grip of these despotic people on the throats of Americans will not be won. Some are just ignorant, rock-fisted thugs, but there are bala kums among them, too. We are going into a war economy as sure as you are born and in this terrible hour we find even Governor Dewey, who knows even more than I do about the brutal, predatory character and practices of the goons, breaking bread with some of the worst and using the occasion to cry up the alarm that our danger is "immediate and perhaps desperate."

I don't much blame him now. They are the strongest power we have and the sudden job of muscled up and making discipline is desperately urgent. In New York the goons are even trying to absorb the cops.

The record of the unions in the Second World war was an appalling exploitation of the blood, anguish and sacrifice of the people and of the country's peril, to fleece loyal war-workers of billions of dollars all of which eventually came out of the whole population as taxes. Unionists were princes of privilege.

John L. Lewis drove from Washington to Springfield, Ill., to visit his old mother while he was coasting down icy hills at risk of your life to save a few drops of gas and sneaks were jolting down license numbers on the parking lots in the evening to report that you were wasting gas going to the movies. James B. Carey, a recessionist, unionist, little qualified that he got shoved out of his own union, became a sort of deposed king on the bounty of the C. I. O. and the White House. He was given a limousine with a government driver and gas and tires because his endeavoring way with the Roosevelts made him indispensable in the

But these were not the worst. Though they were mere opportunists, they were as head-hunters as a hawk headed for hell. Lewis never was a communist and Carey's devotion to Carey left nothing spare for Stalin. There were literally thousands of privileged unionists reading their own words of wisdom in their own grooving little hiltarian papers, collecting laudatory certificates from Morgenthau for investing their subjects money in war bonds and taking bows from the war and navy departments as obscure brigadiers and buck a miral babbled laudations prepared by new deal press agents at the ceremonial breaking-out of phoney "E" pennants.

When it was over, still concerned only in their own selfish empires and honores, they set up a hulla-balloo for demobilization right away and there we got the practical beginning of the present disorganized and demoralized condition of our fighting services. The brass were a lot of vain, selfish, prodigal, glory-hunters. The worst pointers were a gang of cowards called the West Point Protective Association. On performance, we have been able to call up at one time a wonderful corps of air force who had not only stood off Japan with less than one hand until Hitler was out of the way, but had crossed the Atlantic and Mediterranean in colossal force to dispose of him. Then, they had demolished the fearsome Japanese empire, a political mistake to be sure, for that feat of arms turned Stalin loose against Americans in Korea, but a grand professional performance. Nevertheless the "brass" now became a cult of panoplied bums. The unionists said so!

After all these years of sacrifice, tension, struggle and a moment of hatred in our midst, surely ours must be a better world than Herbert Hoover left us! Yes, we had had some male apple yards on some few corners in New York and shack-towns by the tracks, but suppressed history has been recharged since then which shows that both were exaggerated and exploited outwards of an economic slump much less due to Hoover than to the fanatic Wilson, who had to have his war. But even if Hoover couldn't have cured the depression would he have contrived a whole series of war emergencies to bail him out of his crises? Would he have turned over sixteen million Americans over to a gang of licentious, rioting criminals, subject to unlimited taxes and persecutions by kangaroo courts all outside the written forbiddance of the constitution and the public laws? Was there anything in the modest story of his gentle wife to indicate that she ever could have brought herself to butt into bureaucratic affairs, foreign policy and legislative functions always in favor of crummy misanthropes and spies or to revel in graft on the by-product of the election returns. Did any Hoover son ever take a dirty dollar or even a doubtful one?

Mary Pickford wrote a naive book a few years back called "Why not try God?" I find many a one thinking that way now. God knows we gave the devil a long turn at bat.

New York, Aug. 7.—The great blast of favorable propaganda which the New York Herald Tribune and the New York Times published on two successive days, Sunday, July 30, and Monday the 31st, vindicating Owen Lattimore and damning Senator Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin becomes the more interesting and significant on better knowledge of certain facts. To summarize this political performance in the guise of literary criticism, the H-T and the Times each gave this book all of page one of its Sunday book review section plus a break-over and each followed this lavish plaud for the defense with another vindication of Lattimore the next morning. The Monday pieces were three columns wide and the Sunday ones the depth of the page. None of the four even pretended to confine the discussion to the literary quality of the work. A token tribute to the art may be said to exist in such phrases as "fighting book," "intensely personal story containing elements of nightmare" and "it is a story which makes one shiver."

The new masses, a communist magazine, issue of Oct. 14, 1947, page 24, reports that Cameron was a speaker at a protest meeting on behalf of Howard Fast, author of a Eulogy of Tito, the communist dictator of Yugoslavia. Fast had been sentenced to prison for contempt of congress.

Cameron was named in the catalog of 1945 of the Samuel Adams School of Social Studies, of Boston, as one of the trustees. This school was cited on the official list of the attorney general of the United States as Communist and subversive.

Cameron was listed as a signer of a brief amicus curiae presented to the Supreme court of the United States, October term, 1949, by a group called the cultural workers in motion pictures and other arts, on behalf of the so-called Hollywood ten who were sent to prison for refusing to answer whether or not they were Communists.

Cameron was named as sponsor of a dinner in honor of Henry Wallace on Sept. 12, 1949, after Bubbahead's defeat as the Communist candidate for President but before his repudiation of the Communists, Russia and his party on the Soviet invasion of Korea.

Cameron was named as a sponsor of the call for the Bill of Rights congress, held July 16 and 17, 1949, which was cited by the attorney general as a communist and subversive. This "congress" attacked the F. B. I. for going after the Communists.

Cameron was named on the program of a conference held by the committee for a democratic Far Eastern policy, Jan. 23 to 25, 1948. This committee was cited as Communist and subversive on the attorney general's list.

His name was listed as that of a signer of a release from the council for Pan-American democracy, June 5, 1945. This council was cited as communist and subversive by the attorney general.

more was a communist and the top Russian espionage agent in the United States," the political background of Mr. Cameron is unusually interesting.

A press release of the national Wallace for President committee, dated March 23, 1948, when Wallace had the backing of the communists, names Cameron as a member of that committee.

The program of the progressive citizens of America, which launched the Wallace candidacy, dated Oct. 25, 1947, names Cameron as a sponsor.

Tonnemaker Walker to Head All-Stars

Chicago, Aug. 9.—(AP)—Doak Walker, three-time All-American halfback from Southern Methodist university, and Clayton Tonnemaker, 235-pound center from Minnesota, will lead the College All-stars against the Philadelphia Eagles on Soldier field Friday night.

Walker and Tonnemaker were elected co-captains of the All-star by their teammates at their training camp in Delafield Wis., yesterday. Walker will lead the team on offense, and Tonnemaker, an All-American last season, on defense. Head Coach Eddie Anderson of Holy Cross had suggested the double captaincy.

A crowd estimated at 90,000 is expected to see the 17th annual classic in the giant lakefront stadium. The Eagles, champions of the National football league, are two-touchdown favorites. They but few anticipate such a shellacking this summer.

Walker was one of the nation's greatest post-war halfbacks. He won four university awards in football, three in baseball and two in basketball while at SMU. He is 22, weighs 168 pounds, and is a native of Dallas, Tex.

Tonnemaker was the surprise package of the 1950 all-star squad. At the collegians' training camp Tonnemaker has been one of the outstanding performers. All-star coaches believe he is the most powerful bone-crushing lineman in football today.

Tonnemaker, the first center ever to become a captain of the college all-stars, is 21 years old and is from Minneapolis.

Two light workouts were held yesterday at Delafield and there will be two more drills today before the tapering off exercises tomorrow. The All-stars will remain in camp until Friday morning.

For the first time in the history of the series, every all-star will be in uniform and ready to play Friday night. Only possible exception is Gordon Soltan, Minnesota end, who is recovering from a head injury suffered in a recent scrimmage.

Oldest Marshal Dies at the Age of 91

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 8. — (P) — John P. Logan, 91, who until his retirement in February, 1929, was believed to be the oldest U. S. marshal in service, died in a hospital today.

He had been ill for nearly two years. His death was caused by a heart attack.

A native of Camden, Ark., he served in the Arkansas state senate eight years and was a commissioner for Arkansas to the St. Louis World Fair in 1905 and to the Panama exposition in San Francisco in 1915.

Logan came to Oklahoma in 1915. He was appointed U. S. marshal for the northern Oklahoma district in 1933 and held the post until his retirement in 1941. He was elected president of the U. S. Marshal's association and led an unsuccessful effort to bring marshals under civil service.

Survivors include a son, G. Herbert Logan, Texarkana, Ark.

A man joins the guard for one, two or three-year periods. If he qualifies, he can rise in rank. And he retains that rank if called to active duty.

Further, he gets paid, according to his rank, for one drill a week and 15 days' training in camp every year. And he builds up points, or credit, toward a government pension.

He can retire, with a pension due him, after 20 years in the guard but he can't collect any of it till he reaches 60. Without the necessary credits, he can get no pension.

But those are the four main benefits for anyone in the guard: pay, promotion, retention of rank, possible pension.

Now take the reserve system. It's more complicated than the guard. (Because it's different, the navy will be treated separately.)

There are two kinds of reserves in the army and air force: The active and inactive.

Active reserves—This is divided into the organized and volunteer reserves.

1. Organized. Men in this train more or less regularly, in units or as individuals. They get the same benefits as guardsmen.

The organized reserve is made up of officers and those below officer rank, the enlisted men, just as in the guard.

2. Volunteer reserve. Unlike men in the organized reserves, members of the volunteer reserves do little or no training. But they attend lectures or take home study courses.

Unlike the organized reserves who get paid for training, the volunteers get no pay. But they can get the other benefits: Promotion, retention of rank if called to active duty, and possible pension.

(Since their earned credits in the volunteers would be small, their pension would be small.)

To get any pension at all—although they can't collect before—members of the organized and volunteer reserves must remain in them 20 years.

The volunteer reserves are open to veterans of the last war, officers or enlisted men, or to inexperienced men who want to join.

Inactive reserves—This is for officers only. Officers of the army or air force, when released from the armed forces after the last war, were offered the same commissions in the reserves.

(If they declined, then in event of another war they could be drafted and put into the ranks as privates.)

Most accepted the reserve commission. Automatically, they went into the active reserves. If they didn't fulfill the requirements—drilling and training or studying and acquiring credits—they were put in the inactive reserves.

There they could remain but only for five years. At the end of that time, if they didn't say they wanted to remain in the active reserves, their commissions were dropped.

Why would a man want to remain in the inactive reserves? To keep his commission, in case of another war, if called to service. But in the inactive reserves he gets no other benefits.

The navy, though, has only two classes of reserves: Organized and volunteer. The organized reserves train and get the four benefits guardsmen and the army and air force organized reserves get.

The navy volunteer reserves don't have to do anything and, of course, get no benefits except one: They keep their commissions.

Why The navy looks upon any one who was an officer as an officer permanently, to be called back as an officer if needed.

Taylor, Clark Neck 'n Neck in Idaho

Guitar strumming Sen. Glen Taylor and former Senator D. Worth Clark were in a neck-and-neck race today for Idaho's democratic senatorial nomination.

First one and then the other took the lead as ballot counting progressed. With 592 of 839 precincts counted, Clark was leading by 713 votes.

There was the feature contest among primary elections held yesterday in Idaho, Nebraska and Arkansas.

Lowell Tew, New York Yanks' veteran halfback, once spent two days and nights lost in a Mississippi swamp but he's never had any difficulty finding opponents' end zones.

CARBON KILL

Copyright 1930 by NEA Service, Inc. by Julius Long

TRAM STONY: Del Bertram, private detective, is hired by Frank Phajol, a commercial diamond dealer, as a bodyguard on a trip to Copper City, Ariz., to sell 30,000 carats to Mike Dominguez, a big drifter. A glimpse at Phajol's beautiful daughter, Pat, sends Dominguez to take the job in spite of Phajol's reputation for handling stolen "carbon" loot. Pat tells Dominguez her father served a prison term for jewel robbery, but she insists that her father is a respectable business man. While Pat tells Dominguez this, she is evasive about where the loot is hidden. Let of commercial diamonds he is taking to Copper City.

IT was a minute till 12 when we left the hotel. Pat carried a bulging brief case in her right hand and I followed her. As we reached the sidewalk, a battered old car pulled up. Phajol was at the wheel. Pat climbed in front and put the brief case in her lap. I climbed in back. Without saying a word, Phajol put the car in gear and we moved off.

You've heard of Tombstone, but I doubt if you've ever heard of Copper City. It was wilder and woollier than Tombstone in the old days, but writers were never attracted by its name.

The mining camp lies in a deep canyon. In the center of the business district Phajol turned to the left and pulled up a little street that dead-ended at the Copper King Hotel. The hotel stood behind cottonwood and walnut trees kept alive by constant sprinkling. The hotel itself, a four-story structure of red brick and white plastered walls, was built into the side of the canyon. A roofless concrete veranda in front was shaded by the trees, but its ancient wooden chairs were empty.

I helped Phajol take the two Gladstones from the trunk compartment. One, the big one, would be his, the small, expensive one, would be Pat's. She hung on to the briefcase as I carried her bag into the hotel. Phajol wanted to carry his own. He registered for us all.

The clerk accepted the briefcase and locked it in the safe's strongbox. There was no formality of a receipt, but Phajol seemed satisfied. I observed that the lobby, though air-conditioned, was empty except for one occupant, a man who looked as if he might be a minister.

PHAJOL and his daughter had front rooms connected by a doorway and overlooking the roofless concrete veranda just to the right of the lobby entrance. The trees provided seclusion; the hotel was comfortably isolated from view from the front. My own room was from the front. My own room was from the front. My own room was from the front.

I had nothing to unpack, not even a toothbrush. I went across to Phajol's room. He warily opened the door, and I entered.

"When is your date with Dominguez?"

"Three o'clock. He might be early."

"Maybe I'd better case the hotel a little," Phajol nodded. I added with forced casualness: "By the way, don't you think you should tell me where the diamonds are?"

He looked startled. "Why, you saw—Pat left them at the desk!"

I laughed. "That was rather obvious, Phajol. You picked up the diamonds when you were supposed to be picking up a gun. The stuff in the briefcase is probably lead. I think you shouldn't hold me responsible for the diamonds until you tell me where they're hidden."

Phajol studied me a couple of seconds, then said: "They're in that Gladstone. I didn't think you'd guess."

I looked at the unopened Gladstone on the rack. I eyed Phajol again.

"Another thing—Pat must have found you on the phone and told you about Gremcheck's threat."

He nodded. "She told me about the call. I'm not letting it worry me. I gather Pat also told you some other things she had best left unsaid. Please do not pry into my private affairs. You need not worry about my diamonds being stolen from me. All you are hired to do is to protect them."

I WENT down to the lobby by the stairs. It was deserted save for the elderly man who looked as if he might be a preacher. I went over to the desk. To the clerk I said:

"The old guy with the sanctimonious puss—who is he?"

The desk clerk grinned. "That's Straight-Flush Johnnie, the old-time gambler from Brewery Gulch."

"Good heavens! I thought he was a preacher!"

I took another look at the old man and laughed. I decided I need not worry about him. I went on into the taproom. It was empty except for the bartender. I climbed on a stool and ordered a bottle of beer. The bartender served it.

"Quite a town you've got here. Lots of ore comes out of these hills, I guess."

The bartender nodded. "Lots of ore. Too bad they can't get more miners. No wonder, the scale, they pay!" Suddenly he looked frightened. "What's your line, mister?"

"Just seeing the sights." The bartender looked relieved.

"A guy's got to be careful what he says about the company," the bartender said. "The company owns all the mines, the hotel, the big store and everything."

Slayer Still Eludes Big Posse

Emmence, Mo., Aug. 9.—(P)—A crack-shot desperado, accused of killing three persons, eluded a posse in rugged southern Missouri timberlands today for the second straight day.

More than 100 men pursued 39-year-old William Harris, an ex-convict. Bloodhounds were being used in the chase.

Harris fled into the hills of the Ozarks after a triple slaying in a farmhouse near this tiny southern Missouri town.

He is accused of killing his own daughter, four-year-old Barbara Harris; Richard Fansler, 63, a farmer, and Fansler's son, Homer L. Fansler.

The farmer's wife, Rosa, 60, and his brother-in-law, Elmer Nichols, 42, were wounded. It was believed the killing of Harris' daughter during the melee was accidental. Motive for the slayings has not been established.

The search included an area known as "Irish wilderness." Deer paths and timber trails are the only routes through the area.

The state conservation commission said its most experienced agents occasionally get lost in the primitive country.

Harris has been sighted several times since the slayings but he always eluded pursuers.

Yesterday he stole a change of clothing at a farm house about 24 miles east of the scene of the slayings. Officers surrounded the place but were unable to trap him.

The fugitive has a reputation as an excellent shot. Officers said he was armed with two rifles and a pistol.

Capt. J. A. Tandy of the state highway patrol said it would be possible for a fugitive to escape capture for days by hiding out in the densely wooded hills.

Shover Springs

The Shover Springs Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. C. D. Ross on Tuesday.

Plans for the tour were discussed with the members deciding who would go. Play books were ordered for a play to be given in the near future at the community building.

On August 25 the club plans a community get-together at the Fair Park for a weiner roast.

During the recreational period, the door prize was won by Mrs. Grady Reese and the surprise package was won by Mrs. Ross.

The hostess, Mrs. Doris Walden, served refreshments to ten members and one visitor, Miss Mary Ann England.
